College seeks help finding nursing facilities

By Kathleen Rogers

Conestoga College has been asked the Ministry of Colleges and Universities for assistance in finding new nursing facilities for the past six years.

By the end of the year, the ministry must create a long-term plan for the college.

Jack Williams, director of business and administration operations at Conestoga College, said the college was a party to the ministry last month when the ministry was looking for facilities for the ministry.

The college was told by Williams that the ministry was looking for facilities for the ministry. Williams said the ministry was looking for facilities for the ministry.

Day-care study approved

By Sheryl Young

The legislative committee for college support staff will conduct a study to determine the feasibility of fully paid day care for community college staff.

All Personnel on the campus of the Spokane-Spokane-Bankston Community College (SSBC) and the staff will begin to participate in this study in September. The study will be to see if the college can afford to do so on the early childhood education centers available at the college and the day-care facilities available within the community.

Personnel said this study could take about six months to complete and will cost about $100,000. The cost will be shared among the Spokane-Spokane-Bankston Community College (SSBC) and the Spokane-Spokane-Bankston Community College (SSBC).

As stated in an SSBC press release, "Personnel on the campus of the Spokane-Spokane-Bankston Community College will begin to participate in this study in September. The study will be to see if the college can afford to do so on the early childhood education centers available at the college and the day-care facilities available within the community."

Clinton cancels program

Personnel said that it was found that a college should have its own day-care center. The community program may have to be considered in the meantime, but the study would give a lot of information to investigate the day-care needs reported by each campus and to develop a day-care system to meet the needs of each campus.

The purpose of the study is to find out where everything is in the system and then try to look at methods to improve it. "The study will give a lot of information to investigate the day-care needs reported by each campus and to develop a day-care system to meet the needs of each campus."
